TWELVE YEARS AGO.

Fifth February 1870. Transfer of the telegraphs the Government.

Fifth February 1883. In a very bad hotel at Philip Twolve years ago! When life was strong And pulses quick; when hopes were high,

Nimbly the moments tripped along,

Swiftly the hours and days ran by. For, though no day from toils was free, Nor any night was free from cares, The toils and cares possessed for me Charms such as leis are nover shares And told me still, from day to day, As all too fast the seasons flow. How flaws, how blunders pasted away, And order from disorder grow.

Now, in this semi-savage town, And more than semi-savage inn, Listless I watch the sun go down, Sleepless I watch the dawn bogin. Inveterate habit makes me toil In scones with no attraction fraught. Morely to heal a silly broil Botween the Province and the Porte.

But no bright project stirs my pride,

No ardent comrades cheer me on :

The seas, the years, the Fates divide My lot from toils and pleasures gone. Why should I grieve o'er thoughts like those Past days, though past, to me belong. They have not lost their power to please; They still may prompt a cheerful song. Though much seems lost, yet much remains, Of all that once I loved so well-Scenes, voices, looks, my heart retains Its telephone beats that of Ball. I close my eyes. The scene is changed The intervening years have fled.

The sens no more part friends estranged, The parth gives back the once-loved dead! Unseen, unheard, once more 1 stand In the accustomed apot: once more Bright faces gleam on either hand: The mighty engines shake the floor. The needle's old familiar click With rhythmic welcome fills the air. And every sobbing tube is quick To greet an ancient comrade there !

With human instincts; and again Are lade and lasses trained and drilled Mechanic order to maintain. It well may be, in years long hence, When I and all I love are dead, That I. an unseen voiceless sense.

The once familiar floors may tread, Then, as I gaze upon the child We know in blooming infancy, I'll think, doar Atlas, how you smiled Upon her sponsors, and on me.

A grating voice arrests my dream, A creeking shoe the charm dispels..... Old thoughts, old voices, faces, atream Back into memory's inmost wells, What, Costi! you have come! By Jove. It's getting late, as I'm a sinner! Quick! pile more logs within the stove. And, prithes, quickly bring the dinner.

THE COLDEST PLACE IN THE WORLD.

The coldest place on the earth is not, as has hitherto been believed by meteorologists, Iskoutsk, in Siberia, but Verkoyansk, in the same region, lying in 67% degrees north latitude, on the River Yana. Its lowest mean temperature is 48.6 degs. below zero centito the north-west of the Parry Islands, and not pass through the North Pole itself, tidings had been heard. which is thus, in all probability, outside the line of greatest cold. It is well known that north and south of it.

"How's that?" saked Mr. Jones. "That? said the showman, "is not so bad for a starter. You catch my ides. Does fauna indicate that I've got strictly the only live walrus? Or does accreation refer to the walrus? No! What I want is something to spread over a big bill, to go on a fence; something descriptive of the whole managerie. S'pose you give another shy at it."

Mr. Jones offered this: "This gorgeous agglomeration is centifione in construction and is exhibited in seven cyclostomous pavilious, each decked with hombycinous banners. Among the curiosities it includes quadrupedal and bipedal epecimens of the brachyurous, the marvellous anomaliped, the anguinary colivigant, the pachydermatous entomophagous from the torrid jungles of the dark continent, and the cepevorous walrus from the frozen regions of the Pole."

A RAILEOAD ADVENTURE. Seated around a table in a well-known cafe n Borlin, I listened with the interest of a stranger to the conversation of the circle. Introduced by a German friend, I had been invited to join the party, smoke and drink a "schoppen" or more with them. The topics of their talk were varied, ranging from politics to theatre, and the telling of personal adventures and hair-breadth escapes. find hall German, with an intelligent face, brown beard and snow-white heir, and yet who seemed less than forty, drew nearer the to those four-footed cousins of man. table, and, laying his hand upon his head, translate as nearly as possible, the thrilling "If any of you have visited the United States," he said, "you may have heard of Auburn prison in the State of New York. It is not a solitary prison structure, but a collection of massive, high-walled buildings, work-houses, dwellings, shops and cells-it short, a colony for prisoners. I procured the appointment as physician for one division of the prison. It was that part where the most desperate characters were confined, creatures who seemed more like beasts than men, and whose blood must indeed have been different from their fellowbeings. Two of these, prisoners for life-great, powerful men, with the most hardened of features—gave the keepers especial trouble by their incessant threats and endeavors to escape. I had incurred their bitter hate from having discovered, hidden in their clothes, some tools, which Heaven only knows how they procured; and again I had detected their sham illness feigned with the view of reaching the hospital and so furthering their chances for escape. They were put in solitary confinement, heavily froned, and vat, it spite of all precautions, a short time after, one morning, one was mugrade.
